Holly Budge

"Think big. Dream bigger."

Holly's words to live by come from the first woman ever to skydive Everest.

SKYDIVE.

A born horse lover, Budge pushed the boundaries by racing half-wild horses 1,000 km across Mongolia for the infamous Mongol Derby. Meanwhile, when she's not driving off mountains she's snowboarding down them and has summited not only the mighty Everest, but the peaks of Mount Ranier and Cho-Oyu.

It brings a whole new meaning to the idea of feeling on top of the world.

Holly's start came when she became one of very few women employed to skydive in New Zealand alongside tourists, taking shots of them grimacing on the way down. Not something your average school careers advisor might have predicted, but a dream job for Holly.

If leaping from a plane seems a step too far, try indoor skydiving instead. You'll find plenty of thrills with none of the usual risks, as an enormous walled wind turbine allows you to fly, spin and feel insanely free on a cushion of air, before letting you drift gently back down to earth.
